THREATS TO BURN THE GREAT WESTERN RAIL. AY DEPOT .- The Detroit Advertiser has the folwing: "The Southern refugees in Canada, martingfunder the recent passage of the alien ill by the Canadian Parliament, and the extradion of Burley, and the probable surrender of the . Albans raiders, are naturally very indignant, and there is no doubt that before many months elapse they will prove a source of great annoyance to our neighbors. The impression has gained credence in Canada that the late large fires there have been caused by these desperadoes. This opinion is entitled to respect from a recent threat made at Windsor, On Saturday, night last, an anonymous letter was thrust unler the door of the station-master's office threatening that unless the office of the United States Consulate was removed, they might expect to see the depot buildings in ashes inside of three days. The letter has been sent to the Railway Company's headquarters at Hamilton, and a military force, adequate for protection, is to be the letter, whoever he is, evidently does not now much, if he is interested in the plot, but it is supposed it emanated from one who was cognizant of the bad intentions of the desperate men, and desired to give the company timely warning of the danger." GUERILLAS IN INDIANA.—There is a regularly-organized band of robbers in the neighborhood of Lanesville, Harrison county, Indiana, whose depredations have of late become really plarming. They visited the residence of one of the citizens last week, with their faces blackened, and robbed him of a large sum of money. They have also stolen bedding, clothing, provisions, and other articles of property, but as yet none of the gang have been discovered. Considerable excitement exists in regard to these outrages, and every effort will be made to dis-

Mule Stealing .- A large number of people rom the region around Nashville report that they have suffered more or less from a band or bands of robbers who infest the country for miles around. Probably hundreds have been robbed of mules and other stock within the past week, the largest number of sufferers residing in Williamson county. These marauders stole three mules from Mr. Buck Davis, near Brentwood, a few nights ago, and nearly all his neighors have suffered more or less.

One of the most destructive fires that ever risited Corydon, Indiana, broke out in that town bout three o'clock yesterday morning, in the vincipal business square of the village. The re spread rapidly, as there were no engines ith which to combat it, and raged with great ury. The citizens, with buckets, worked nov, but their efforts were unavailing, until the re exhausted itself for want of more material.

REF A number of ladies were arrested at Memphis, a few days ago, as the steamer James Watson, on which they had taken passage, was about leaving for Vicksburg. One of them, Mrs. Prim, had a large quantity of quinine sewed up in a victorine, and in her valise were a number of cotton cards and other articles of a contraband character.

An extraordinary escape from prison has just been made at Toulon, by a seaman in the French navy named Cornieto. He made a hole through a wall more than four feet thick, broke open two doors, plundered the clothes store of he establishment, and then, scaling a wall wenty feet high, got clear away. A troupe of Chinese jugglers are now erforming at Indianapolis. The principals are Isin-Chi-Hoang, Ching-Chang-Chong, and It took just one hour to catch, hang; and ary a guerilla named Ready in Tennessee.

FEBRUARY 12, 1865. To the Editors of the Louisville Journal:

DEAR SIES: Some time ago there appeared in Dear Sire: Some time ago there appeared in the Journal and Democrat a statement that the comrades of Lieut. J. P. Ball, who was killed at Bardstown, robbed his person of all the jewellery and money he had in his possession, first dragging his body for some distance after he fell. From this statement it would be inferred that he had been robbing, plundering, and maranding. Now, he was no guerilla, and never guilty of any such disreputable acts. He had no jewellery upon his person when he fell, and little or no money, not more than a dollar or on, and was cut off from his command as he bassed through Kentucky. He had an older wrother, who died in the Union service, and was one of the first to join Rousseau's regiment at Camp Joe Holt. His widowed mother and nearly all his relations have always been steadfast friends of the Union. Justice requires this tatement and its publication.

tric lady at large in that city: tric lady at large in that city:

A lady entered one of the State street cars yesterday, and found every seat taken. A gentleman rose and invited the lady to accept the seat he had vacated. She did so, politely thanking him for his kindness. The lady wore a dark delaine dress, plain shawl, and an ordinary tancolored straw hat. She had a fair complexion, smiling countenance, keen black eyes, and an expression that indicated a good degree of intelligence. Her appearance was neat and tidy, her face was free from dirt and paint, her hair was smoothly combed, without curls, frizzles, or beau-catchers. There was nothing in the appearance or deportment of this individual that would attract special attention, or lead any one to suspect she was not in sound mind, save the Detroit paper says: Detroit paper says:

He appears to be quite resigned, yet is very anxious to learn his probable fate. He claims the right of being treated as a prisoner of war, acknowledges himself a genuine rebel, insists that he was periectly justifiable in capturing the Philo Parsons, but denies that he took the clerk's money. We inferred from his conversation that his friends had engaged counsel in this city to defend him, and that he expected to be acculted of the charge of robbery. When and expressed an unwillingness to so humble himself to a "Yankee." During his confinement in the jail at Toronto he studied Greek and French, and was engaged in writing the adventures of his early life, which he probably expects will one day become useful to some caterprising publisher of "yellow-kivered" literature. We were much astonished to find him so ignorant more matters, relative to contract ignorant upon matters relative to captured rebels, yet we do not know that he is more so than many others of his class. He seemed to labor under the impression that "Yankee" was a synonymous term for cannibal, and that he was going to be eaten whole, without the accompanymous depends on the second of the seco

THE HOG TRADE-INTERESTING STATIS-

[From the Chicago Times.] [From the Chicago Times.]

Notwithstanding the fact that some six weeks of excellent packing weather yet remain, the packing season of 1864-'5 has already closed. Not that there is no demand for the product, for many packers are disposed to continue cutting as long as favoratie weather for operating continues, but because the supply of hogs is utterly exhausted, and it is impossible to procure enough to continue the houses in operaserved to increase the number of hogs cut to 2,893,733, being an excess of 448,181 hogs more than the country should have been called upon to furnish, or was able to furnish, without drawing upon the future. During the season of 1862-3, the price of live weights advanced from $3 to $4 and $5 per hundred, and so stimulated the market that the extraordinary number of 4,009,520 hogs were cut in these same States, being an increase—and advance of upon the being an increase—and a drain, too, upon the stock of young hogs which should have re-mained upon the farms for the next season—of 1,175,987. When the season of 1863-'4 opened, 1,173,887. When the session of 1953-4 opened, the drain of the two previous years was seriously felt. Prices, however, opened at $4.90 for live weights and ranged up as high as $6.75. Jan 9; $7, Feb. 6; $7.50, Feb. 13; and $7.75 at the close of the season. Producers again drew upon the future. Every young hog which could be possibly fitted for market was placed in could be pessibly fitted for market was placed in the pens, and, after a brief feeding, sold to the packers; and 3,271,105 head of these young, halfnmerated. The result was that, although the country being scoured, and every animal possi-ble brought to market, there is a large defi-ciency. That the stock of young hogs had been drawn upon must be evident to every one who traordinary prices, every animal possible has been brought in. The country will feel this drain more severely another season, for, now that there are so very few animals of any description left in the country, the number packed next season must be far less than the

LETTER FROM FRANKFORT.

Frankfort, Feb. 13, 1865. The matter of absorbing interest before the Legislature at present is the ratification of the proposed amendment to the Federal Constituporting distance of each other, but very few tion abolishing slavery. Various resolutions have been introduced in both Houses, some of them proposing to ratify and adopt the amendcommittees. The Senate Committee (Judiciary) is instructed to report to-morrow, and their report is looked for with no ordinary degree of interest. Whether they will agree upon a plau, or whether there will be two reports, has not yet transpired. There is a disposition upon the part of some of the members to take a recess, in order to visit and consult their constituents before taking action upon this question. But it would seem that the prevailing purpose is to meet and act tion in which were congregated a number of in-sane adults; for though, when placed there, they may have seemed to be perfectly docile and armless, vet there is no relving upon the action of a man when reason is dethroned. To-day he may be tractable and gentle, and to-morrow a raving, desperate maniac. It is greatposition would defeat the whole object had in view in the establishment of the Feeble-minded Institute. It is just now approaching comple-tion, and ought not to be tramelled, as it oc-curs to me. Far better appropriate a few thou-sand dollars to enlarge the Lunaite Asylums. and dollars to chiarge the Lunauc Asymums.

There are divers counter reports with regard to the appointment of Gen. Palmer to the command in Kentucky and the consequent supersedule of Gen. Burbridge. The advocates of Gen. B. confidently claim that no such change has or will be made, whilst those who favor a change seem as sanguine that the order has been rade.

respectable and acceptable "greenback" which it contained, and he desires us to tender his best

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1865.

Our telegraphic despatches, informing us of Gen. Sherman's movements, are interesting. though not positive in the intelligence conveved. From statements made by the Richmend papers of the 11th inst., inference is drawn that a portion of Gen. Sherman's army occupies Branchville, South Carolina, that the railroads between that place and Augusta and Columbia have been destroyed, and that Charleston is being evacuated. This intelligence, if reliable, may well inspire the hopes of the country as to a speedy and triumphant termination of Sherman's campaign, now the most important in the programme of the war. It was generally believed that Gen. Hardee was concentrating troops at Branchville for the FURNISHING purpose of giving Sherman battle, but we may now conclude that the evacuation of Charleston will be followed by a concentration of all the rebel forces in the Carolinas at some more interior point, or the withdrawal of them GREEN & GREEN'S entirely from those States, and the uniting of them with the grand army of Lee, preparatory to the combined assault of Grant and Sherman on the rebel capital. The policy of giving up the sea-coast and assuming strong positions is SHE HE WE ARE TO CHE TO ENGLISH ENGLISHED the interior of the country has been urged for some time by the rebel journals, and that policy seems now to be adopted. The policy, however, is necessitated by the successful movements of our own troops. Sherman will now continue his march northward, aiming at Florence and Kingsville, in South Carolina, and Raleigh and Weldon, in North Carolina, at all of which points important lines of railway centre. The destruction of these roads will completely cut off the army of Lee from the PRATHER & SMITH'S, supplies in Georgia and North Carolina, leaving him chiefly dependent upon lower Virginia. In the meantime Hardee and Beauregard will join the army of Lee, provided they can escape the advances of General Sherman. LADIES' FINE MINK, SABLE, FITCH, and STONE-Thus do present indications point to the final

Additionl | together with a large stock of MEN'S and BOYS' FELT fighting may follow, but upon no such large | HATS and CAPS. A large stock in store and for sale scale as heretofore. A partisan warfare may ensue, but its dreadful consequences will be mainly suffered by the rebels themselves. Such warfare cannot long endure; it will quickly destroy the spirit and energies of those who sup-

General Grant is reported as having said. within a few days past, that, with one hundred on a Bendgland, thousand more men, he could terminate the war in three months. That number, and more, if Tobacco Factors needed, will be given him by the present draft. The loyal States have but to act quickly and vigorously in sending forward recruits, and Grant and Sherman will overthrow the chief armies of rebellion.

New York is experiencing another sensation. The people have fresh cause for excitement. The Herald gives publicity to another startling story. A reliable correspondent has learned that two monster rebel iron-clads, manned by rebel pirates, have recently sailed from off the coast of France for the port of New York, The vessels are called the Stonewall and Rapid Ann, names historical in the war, but such as fail to indicate in every particular the success of the Confederates. The boats are believed to be involuerable, and it is thought that they will experience but little difficulty in running past the batteries which guard the approaches by water to New York. This announcement must afford great consolation to the residents of that city. If the fortifications are of so little avail they had better be demolished at once, and new works constructed We want forts capable of offering more than a show of defence. Guns and battlements have lost much of their terror. People are not half so easily scared now as they were four year

New York is to be attacked and laid in ashes: so says the correspondent of the Herald. What a pleasant reflection to the denizens of that place! We presume that for the next month O. F. YOUNG, W. B. WILSON. they will dream of horrible monsters encased in iron and loaded down with deep-mouthed cannon, and of terrible conflagrations. But the people of the great metropolis have as good a a right to grow excited as have the people of any other city. They have a perfect right to spoil their sleep with feverish dreams if they CAPT, CLARK, OF THE 24th WISCONSIN, WILL desire to do so. Napoleon and Jeff Davis 20 have entered into a grand scheme to speedily end the war in favor of the South. Two powerful gunboats are to be despatched to to generate family. Address, giving references, P. O. Box 144. the American coast, to batter down weak fortifications, and destroy our great commercial ities. The blackness of ruin soon will greet us or a suspension of hostilities, and for peace on any terms. This is, indeed, a grand enterprise. The project is not less original than the story of the Herald is marvellous. Notwithstanding New York is apprehensive, we do not place much confidence in the reliable correspondent's statements, nor feel, in the least degree, alarmed for the safety of the Union cause. We are willing to pit one of our monitors against any vessel that weathers the sea from Europe to America. If it was not for poiling a fine sensation we would urge the Navy Department to order Admiral Porter's fleet to New York to protect the city from this new danger. Great sensations are not an every day occurrence now. Our gigantic war, replete with startling incidents, aborbs the public interest to the exclusion of affairs of minor importance. We are willing that the New Yorkers should enjoy their present sensation. We would not do anything so impolitic as to urge the sending of a fleet to harbor to afford protection to the city, Such a programme would ruin all, and the denens would relapse into a dormant condition. We sympathize with our friends at the metropolis, yet do not implicitly believe that Napolean and Jeff Davis will end the war in less than two

If the hair is dry, stiff, and lifeless, it will give it a offness, and lively and youthful appearance.

If the hair is becoming thin, weak, and falling off, it will restore its strength and beauty.

If the hair is gray, or becoming so, it will restore it to its original color without staining so, it will restore it to its original color without staining scalp or hands.

It is free free from all impurities or poisonous drucs. It is no hair dye, but an infallible restorative, and will do all that is promised, when used by the directions.

Hear what Dr. Van Zandt (one of the oldest and best physicians, and most celebrated oculist in the State) says in regard to the EUREKA.

St. Louis, December 17, 1864 St. Louis, December 17, 1864 Mr. Fisher has submitted to my inspection the recipe for making his Hair Restorative, and, after a careful examination of the different ingredients which enter into its preparation, I have no hesitation in pronouncing it (physically speaking) a most happy compound, and especially suited to the requirements of Nature, and the designs of its inventor. Therefore, it cannot prove otherwise than one of the most valuable preparations of its kind now in use, for changing the color of the hair and responsing the scalp from a diseased to a healthy condition.

Some month or two since an officer, honorably discharged from the United States service, by reason of the loss of a leg, procured a permit, and, not having the necessary means to buy a stock of goods, advertised in the Cincinnati papers for a partner, which was answered by the firm of Speer & Cudweth, of that city, who furnished the money, and sent to Nashville as partner of the officer a man by the name of Nelson Farnham, and represented him as an honorable business man, who had been employed by them for some years. The officer placed all the business in his hands, giving him full charge of the books, money, etc. On Monday, he took passage on the S P. M. train for this city, taking all the money, books, papers, etc., leaving his partner in Nashville without anything. The officer immediately telegraphed to the Chief of Police in this city. and ordered his arrest, which it is hoped will be effected, and he returned to Nashville for trial.

LA RUE'S STRATOPATETICON. -There was anoth er tremendous audience last night at Masonic Hall to witness the second exhibition in this city of La Rue's wonderful Stratopateticon, or Walking Army. The novely of thousands of soldiers on the march, moving with a precision that mimics life, the engagment of the besieging army, the retreat, the regular action, the exploding mines, the firing of cannons, the rattle of musketry, the din of war, all combined, make this a startling and wonderful exhibition. The pen cannot describe the emotions this entertainment produces on the mind, and it is at very indescribable something that invests it with so much interest. Mr. La Rue's comic impersonations are pleasing interludes, and form, if not the most instructive, certainly the most laughable part of the entertainment. There will be a matince this afternoon at three o'clock, and another exhibition to-night.

Hook was called to visit a patient yesterday about dusk on Walnut, near Preston street. He had carefully hitched his horse before visiting the sick man. When he left his patient, he found that his horse and buggy had disappeared. He had not been in the house more than one minute. The police were immediately informed of the fact, who traced the horse and buggy leaving the city on the Bardstown pike, probably for Sue Mundy's camp. The Doctor says the animal is a fine large bay horse, carries a high head, and has a short tail. An indistinct brand of "U. S." is on the left shoulder. The horse was formerly the property of Capt. Crawley, and valued at $400. The buggy was a top-buggy, and somewhat worn.

Fire.—The alarm of fire last night about ten o'clock was occasioned by the partial burning of the "Farmer's Home." The fire originated in the garret, and was squelched by the exertions of the efficient Fire Department before much damage was done. The loss is estimated by fire some years since. Whatever sum may be necessary for that purpose certainly should be appropriated, but no more than is absolutely necessary. transacted this morning, save the passage of an act authorizing the several counties of the commonwealth to issue and sell bonds to the sum of $200,000, and sell them for the purpose of raising a bounty fund, and authorizing the levying of a tax of twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollars worth of property to pay the interest thereon, and finally to redeem the bonds, with a provision that the property of soldiers who have served two years in the army shall not be taxed under the act. A resolution was also introduced by Alf Allen, setting forth the fact that the quota of Kentucky was not announced antil the 3d day of February, and, in view of the present distracted condition of the country,

In a prize case before the United States District Court, it was charged in a libel that a certain vessel was forfeited by reason of having entered the port of Norfolk, in violation of the regulations presented by the Secretary of the Treasury, and the several proclamations of the President. Her cargo was landed December, 1863, and the seizure of the vessel was not made until the following June. During the interval the vessel made three or four innocent voyages. The turning point in the case was the question whether the vessel made guilty by the language of the admiralty law by the violation above mentioned, was purged by the innocence of subsequent voyages, coupled with the delay of the Government in making the seizure. The court held the forfeiture as complete at the moment the cause of it arose, and this cause in the act violating the law. Sentence of condemnation was accordingly pronounced.

OFF WILMINGTON, Feb. 7.

Sire: I have the honor to report that I entered Little River, S. C., on the night of the 4th, an i ascended about eight miles, with four boats and fifty men, and landed in a small town of All Saints parish, on the Little river. The town was placed under guard without the knowledge of the inhabitants, and I succeeded in capturing some soldiers' arms. I held the place next day, and discovered and destroyed about $15,000 worth of cotton. I also captured two flats at the mouth of the harbor, containing twenty-three bales of cotton, which had some time since been removed from a blockade-runner to lighten her. These we brought off, together with some negroes.

The South Carolina planters and all men whom I met professed to be willing to comback under the old Government, and most of them seemed to be loyal men, only awaiting pation from military rule. On the 6th I sent two boats crews ashore in Charlotte Inlet, under command of Acting Master Pettit. He surprised and routed the rebel force detailed to collect provisions in that country, capturing six soldiers, with their arms and equipments, and destroying the stores which had been gathered for the enemy at Fort Anderson. The soldiers lately stationed at Charlotte had been withdrawn to assist in the defence of Wilmington. A hundred rebels are still at Lockwood's Ferry. The woods are full of de-serters. (From the Dublin University Magazine.] "FAIRY ALICE." A TOUCHING STORY OF PARENTS AND CHILD,

All things that are, both great and small, a sort of little queen, and reigned regularly, lived a Mr. Bruce, an advocate and father of Fairy Alice, a man of about six-and-thirty, in what is called a respectable business, making a few hundreds a year, and yet with every hour of smooth road of life to travel along—a man that chafed and writhed at anything like domestic battle, and on whose nerves a wordy conflict jarred violently. And this man of briefs and

Fairy Alice was looking in that direction wistfully also; but though not in full possession of the facts yet, with a wonderful

This was an old friend of Mr. Bruce's, a shrewd, long-headed, genial, true, honest, and blunt man of business; a burly figure, a broad chest, and a quick, sharp manner. Captain Bell, too, was his name, "Commander Bell" was upon his card. He had served, not much within the range of shot and shell, but more in a pacific et not less laborious direction: in guard ships and on packet stations, and along the coast generally. He was now waiting for something form. They went, they breakfasted at the rustic inn, they saw the above ruins, they dined upon the grass, and were as happy as they had laid out to be. Fairy Alice was in great delight. Never did she so much belong to a Reynoln's picture as on this day. The sun that made the abbey flaxen locks with a splendid gorgeousness. A little hat was perched on one side of her head, diminutive pattern, was on her shoulders. She did not skip and gambol about in the grass, in which fashion children of her age testify their enjoyment, but was quietly joyous and very talkative, making light and wise remarks all through the day. Mr. Bruce, the advocate was dragging no lengthening legal chain, and for a time had got clear of the fatal legal bondage. It was, indeed, a very happy time for all. Mr. Bruce, the advocate, was actually in spirits, and even became iocular.

Coming home in the rain, Fairv Alice chattered for them noisily. She stood up between them and looked out of the window on the country flying past. They were the only passengers in that compartment, so they could exact without restraint. "Come," said Mr. Bruce, "you shall stand up on the cushion, and you will see better. You can describe everything to us like the man at the panorama."

Fairy Alice jumped up at once,

"Take care, Charles," said Mrs. Bruce, "she will fall out."

"Fall out?" said he, laughing; "Fairy is too wise for that; or, if she does, I must go after her, for I have ber here fast."

"Oh, how pretty!" said Fairy, with great delight. "I can see so well now. On the right, ladies and gentlemen, you will observe —"

"Oh, mamma, let me stay. I am quite safe here."

"I tell you. Helen, nothing can happen to her. I have fast hold of her."
"But what is the use of it?" said Mrs. Bruce, her film of ice now beginning to spread. "It versal wretchedness, moral gloom, was over all things in that house.

It came at last to the final days—even to the final day. There was still a gulf between Mr. Bruce, the advocate, and Mrs. Bruce. Both were coldly inflexible; there was on both sides the same height, depth, breadth, and thickness of pride; and the two quantities had met and would not give way. Some days before, indeed, during one of their meals, had he thrown out some gentle words, scarcely amounting to a out some gentle words, scarcely amounting to a positive advance, but still smoothing the road for an advance. These were frozen back upon him promptly.

Both, indeed, secretly turned toward that distant arbitrar, to bluff, honest, business-like Commander Bell. His plain sense would be invaluable at this crisis; but, with all his bluffness, he was sensitive, and had met with too open contumely to have forgotten it. And so it had come to the actual vigil of Mrs. Bruce's departure for London; and these two proud spirits still aloof and defant, were not to give spirits, still aloof and defiant, were not to give way. With the morning Mrs. Bruce would go forth coldly; and time and distance, it is pretty well known, what efficient aids to a decent in-

Her birthday came round somewhere about Easter—a great festival in the hoase; the two parents made her presents, and there was usually some little gala organized for the dy. Happily, too, at this season, Mr. Brace had a sort of vacation at his courts, and putting on a little exit as pressure in advance, contrived to devote one day to a sort of affectionate idleness. And it had come to one special year, when Fairy Alice was nine years old, and the pretiest little queen of her age that had been seen in the city.

A BRIEF CHAPTER ON KISSES. Kisses cannot be defined, too much of the of the choice dew of Heaven—too much of the foretaste of immortal happiness is born in their roseate being to render their definition possible. Gentle, enchanting, etherializing, soul-insplring kisses, ye are neither of heaven nor of earth, of reason nor of fancy, wholly. Ye are a rosy band failing upon our spirit with a dulect violence, and retaining it amid the sombre scenes of life with a power of grateful resignation.

The true and sweetest flower of existence, the liquid poesy of heart, and the glorious picturing of some bright hope are in kisses. They associate all blissful memories—deck the heavy future with golden clouds and violet skies; and gather together the brief pleasure of the known past and seal them, and make them long lasting with their hyblean breath.

All kisses have honey in them, though more less—a drop or numessured quantity accord-

Lips were made for kissing. Is it strange if

A shade would come upon the forehead of the strockers, deepening presently; "What harm is Fairy doing?" be would say: "there is no one by; surely, for a moment, it can't make much matter."
"Oh. mamma must come!" said the little girl, cagerly.

Mrs. Bruce's lips moved a little. "I thought on were consulting me as to the propriety of going at all, not as to whether I would go myself. If you do ask me, I should say we have had enjoyment enough."

All this while Fairy Alice's face has been growing thoughtful and distressed. She is so wise and so discreet, she knows perfectly what is coming, and is actually gently sliding down.

A YEAR'S IMPRISONMENT OF A WIFE.—The in A Year's Impersonment of a Wife—The interest which was awakened by the case of Mr. and Mrs. Hammond, who lived at Laurel Lodge, in the metropolitan suburb of Peckham, died away to some extent when he plead guilty, at the Sessions to the ill treatment which was charged against him. It will be remembered that the wife brought the husband an income of £600 a year, and when the horrid disclosures came to light relative to the cruelty with which he treated her, locking her up a whole year in a filthy room, the smell from which was most loathsome, from long neglect, and, while she loathsome, from long neglect, and, while she was cloathed in rags, her female jailers, her husband's favorites, were flaunting lu fine dresses taken from their mistress's wardrobe, Hammond agreed to settle £300 a year, or half of the fortune, under a deed of separation, upon the lady he had so cruelly injured.

He evidently thought by this course of pro-cedure to escape punishment for his conduct; but when he was brought up for sentence Baron lic justice was not to be detrauded in that way, and though the prisoner might restore a part of the morey, it did not cancel the offence of which Hammond had been guilty. Hammond, who was awaiting his discharge with perfect equanimity, was ordered to be placed in the dock, and, notwithstanding the declaration of the prosecuting counsel, that he did not ask for a severe sentence, the learned Baron sent him to hard leber for twelve months. This trial and severe sentence, the learned Baron sent him to hard labor for twelve months. This trial and sentence will reach that class of criminals who are what is called "respectable," under the cover of which they can conceive and carry out rascalities for a lengthened period, which, in the case of poorer ruffians, must be brought to light and to punishment immediately.—English paper.
